COUNTY GOVERNMENT OF KIAMBU

THE MODEL COUNTY

Governor Kimani Wamatangi has increased OSR to Sh6.5 billion, built 512 new ECDE centres with feeding programme, 32 new hospitals, modenised medical equipment, 12,000 solar streetlights and seven bus parks, 26 markets and 100,000 water connections.

Revamped 19 VTCs, supported over 750,000 farmers with farm inputs, developing 9 stadia, now working on roads, bridges and drainage.

Four years of keeping the promise through culture of delivering excellence

The Early Childhood Development Education (ECDE) have PP1, PP2, office, ablution block and a well equipped play area

Kiambu County has 540 public primary schools spread across its 12 constituencies.

Before 2022, none of the schools had a properly constructed Early Childhood Development Education centre, even though the county government had been in place for ten years.

Learners studied in dilapidated classrooms donated to the ECDE by primary schools, which sometimes kicked them out.

But in 2023, Kiambu Governor H.E Dr Kimani Wamatangi designed a model ECDE centre.

The centres comprised PP1 and PP2 classrooms with tiled floors and ceilings, an administrative office in the middle, separate toilets for teachers, boys and girls, as well as a play area comprising tunnels, swings and sand pits.

Today, as Governor Wamatangi marks four years since his swearing-in as the fourth Governor of Kiambu on August 27, 2022, he has completed 512 ECDE centr es that rival private academies.

The schools are fitted with cozy furniture for the learners.

"First impressions are important because they shape a person's attitude or behavior towards something. Imagine if the children's first exposure to schooling is in the dreadful condition of public nursery schools; how do we expect them to love learning?" Mr Wamatangi said.

The county government, through the Department of Education, has also constructed standalone ECDE centres on community land in areas without public schools to shorten the distance children have to travel to attend nursery schools.

County Executive Committee Member for Education Dr Mercy Njagi says, "Since we started building the new ECDE centres, we have seen parents regain confidence in our public ECDE centres. Now, they are taking their children out of private centres and bringing them to us."

Comprehensive feeding programme that serves 52, 000 Kiambu ECDE learners with uji, boiled eggs and milk

In 2022, the Kiambu County ECDE enrollment stood at 32,000 leaners, despite the county having a population of about three million people, according to the World Health Organisation (WHO).

Most of the parents were enrolling their children in private academies, despite their high fees, because they offered decent infrastructure, meals and teachers to provide quality education.

But in 2023, Kiambu Governor Kimani Wamatangi launched what was previously unthinkable, prompting critics to wonder whether it was sustainable.

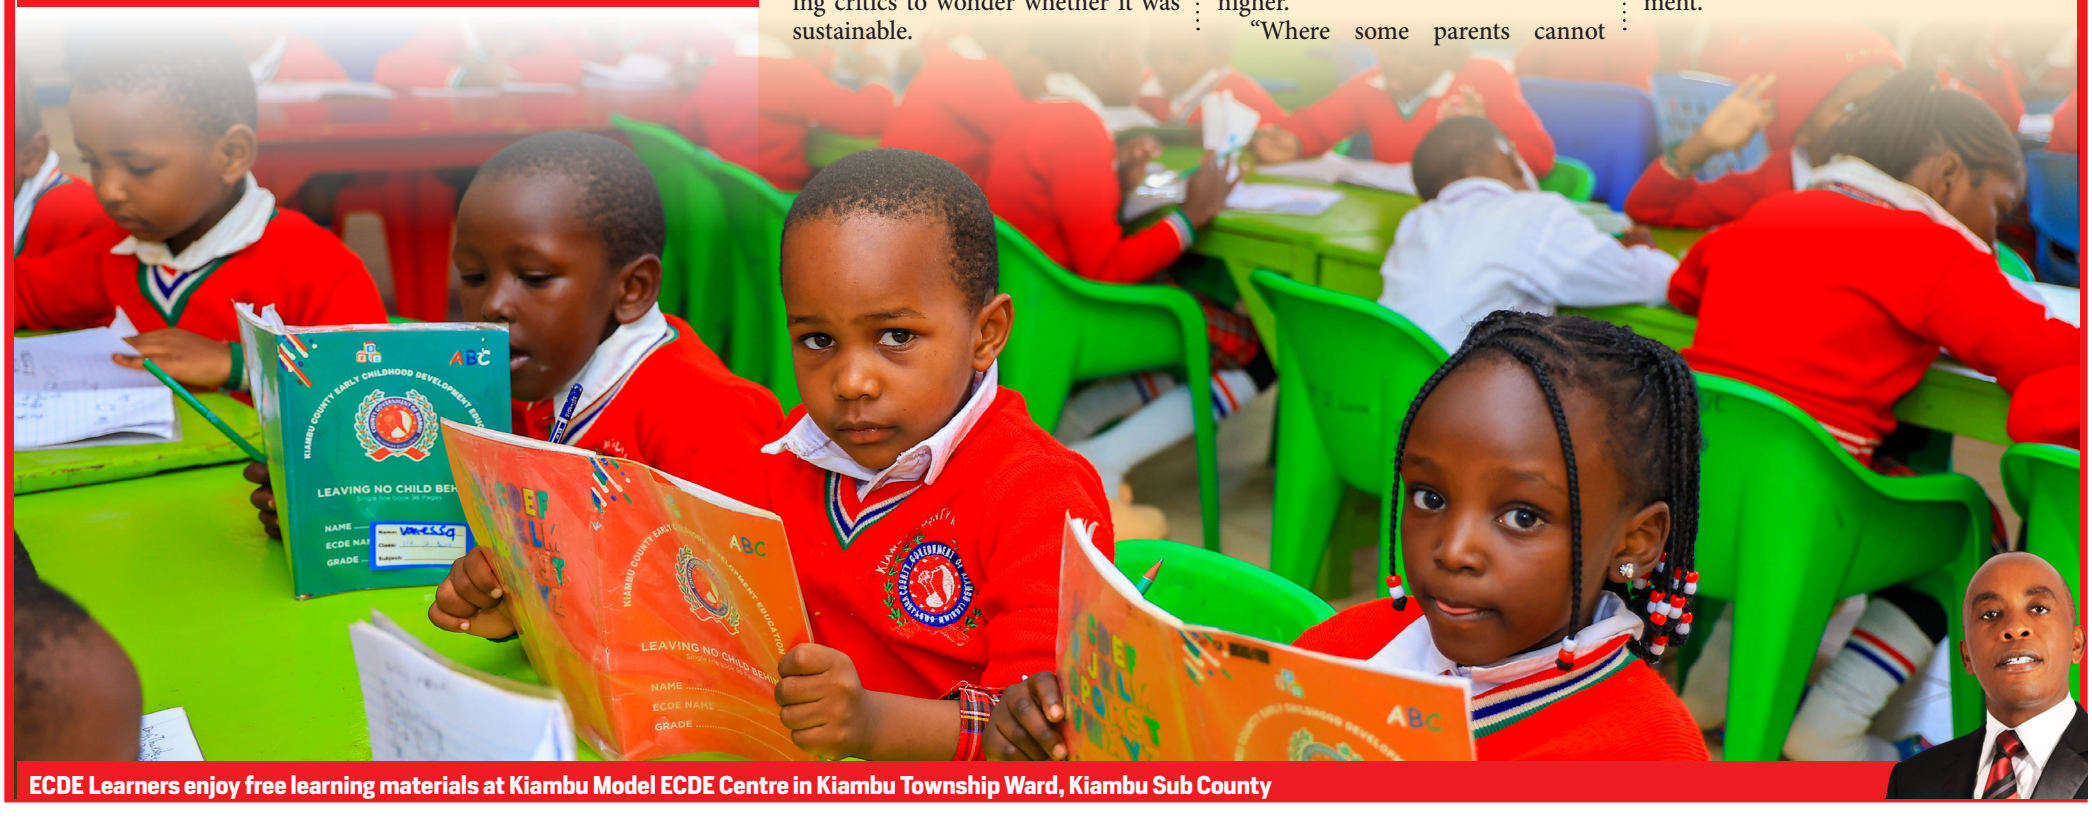

The Governor launched a comprehensive feeding programme that has for the four years been offering free meals that include fortified uji daily, three boiled eggs per day, and a packet of milk every day.

The eggs are bought from local farmers, while the milk is purchased from Gathunguri Dairies, the maker of Fresha Milk products, which is part of the county's efforts to empower local communities.

Today, the population of learners has increased from 32,000 to over 52,000, with the number poised to go higher.

"Where some parents cannot provide meals for their children at home, it affects their school attendance. However, with the feeding programme, every child looks forward to going to school. In fact, some children even refuse to join class because the environment in primary schools was not as welcoming as in the ECDE classes where they enjoy meals," Governor Wamatangi said.

Further, the county has also been offering free learning materials to leaders, where they get exercise books for all subjects, pencils, sharpeners and erasers from the county government.

Six level 4 hospitals, 26 level 3 constructed and

Karuri Level IV Hospital in Karuri Ward, Kiambaa Sub-County

The 32 hospitals are expected to increase bed capacity by 2,400

Kiambu County, with a population of about 3 million people according to the World Health Organization, sees approximately 5.4 million patients per year, including 80,000 deliveries, in its health facilities.

This has been linked to a growing influx of patients from neighbouring counties who stream to county facilities for healthcare services, often leading to congestion.

The total bed capacity across all county hospitals is about 1,500, yet public facilities can't turn away visiting patients.

To address this, Kiambu Governor has constructed six level four hospitals and 26 level three hospitals to ease congestion in existing hospitals and bring healthcare services closer to wananchi.

The 32 hospitals currently at the equipping stage are expected to increase bed capacity by 2,400.

180 beds each

The level four hospitals with a capacity of 180 beds are: Kikuyu, Lari, Bibirioni, Karuri, Githunguri and Juja.

The level three hospitals with outpatient and inpatient services, maternity wings, general wards, pediatrics, laboratories, and theatres have been spread across the wards. County Executive Committee Member for Health, Dr Elias Maina, says the move ensures that all wards have at l east a level-three hospital.

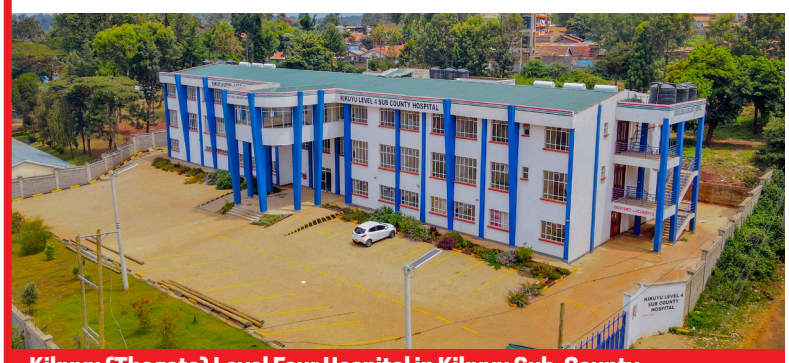

"The first stage was the construction that is complete, and currently we have contractors already on sites assembling and installing medical equipment in some of these new facilities so that we can operationalise them," Governor Wamatangi said.

Kiambu is the first county to have more than 14 X-ray machines in the same territory

When Kimani Wamatangi became the fourth governor of Kiambu in August 2022, the hospitals had deteriorated facilities and outdated medical equipment that frequently broke down.

The health services were wanting. Facilities would operate without drugs.

The governor, through the Department of Health Services, embarked on the renovation of existing hospitals and the renewal of medical equipment to improve medical services.

Within the last four years, the county has bought and installed new medical equipment across the hospitals.

They include advanced digital X-rays that takes minutes to process images, ultrasound, dialysis machines, endoscopy, digital dental X-ray machines, laboratory, and theatre equipment installed in several level three, four, and five hospitals. These are linked to a Hospital Information Management System that automates health services and connects all county hospitals.

County Chief Officer in charge of Health Services, Dr. Patrick Nyaga, said the county has spent over Sh800 million to renew equipment in existing level three, four and five hospitals that have also been renovated, and another Sh1.5 billion is being spent on 32 new hospitals.

Kiambu County boosts modern emergency services with 19 new ambulances

Newly acquired fully equipped ambulances by the Kiambu County Government. (INSERT) Interior of the ambulance

Previously, Kiambu County Government relied on costly and unreliable hired ambulances.

When Governor Kimani Wamatangio took office in August 2022, he purchased 18 ambulances, each equipped to respond swiftly to medical emergencies.

The fleet includes a dedicated maternity ambulance to support pregnant women during emergencies, providing safer deliveries and quicker access to medical care.

All ambulances are equipped with the Ambulance Control and Surveillance Link (ACSL), a real-time tracking system that enables County health officials to monitor locations. When an emergency call is received, the system identifies and dispatches the nearest available ambulance.

The County has established a fully operational Emergency Operations Centre (EOC) as the central command for all emergency health responses. Trained staff use the ACSL system to monitor the fleet, receive calls, assess situations, and dispatch ambulances promptly.

Well stocked essential drugs and health products at Gatundu Level 5 Hospital

Since taking office, Governor Kimani Wamatangi has made the reliable availability of medicines and medical supplies a key priority in transforming healthcare services across Kiambu County.

His administration has directed all county health facilities to maintain at least 85 percent stock levels of essential medicines, a major improvement from the frequent shortages that previously affected hospitals. County records show that the 85 percent threshold has been maintained across the facilities, supported by stronger pharmaceutical management and monitoring systems.

A major intervention is the establishment of the Ruiru Central Medical Store, which is designed to serve as the main hub for storing and distributing pharmaceuticals and non pharmaceutical supplies to health facilities across the county. The facility is intended to reduce procurement delays by allowing the county to place orders in advance and replenish facilities before stocks run low.

The county has also strengthened its Health Products and Technologies Unit to coordinate the management of medicines and other medical commodities under one system. In addition, a Hospital Management Information System linked to health facilities enables officials to monitor stock levels and identify facilities requiring replenishment.

The county's farmer empowerment programme is supporting households through access to improved inputs, training and modern farming practices.

Over 500,000 farmers have benefited from certified seeds and fertilizer in the last four years to improve crop yields and food production.

The impact of the programme has been that, for the last three years, there has been no need for relief food in Kiambu County since families are able to produce sufficient food for themselves.

More than 200,000 women have received improved Kienyeji chicks to support poultry farming and create additional sources of income.

How piglets program is giving hope to Kiambu youth

Thousands of young people have benefited from the distribution of improved breeding piglets aimed at encouraging agribusiness, creating employment and providing sustainable sources of income.

Just like the chicks, the piglets are bought from the Kenya Agricultural and Livestock Research Organization (KALRO) which is a premier national government institution in Kenya.

County livestock officers say beneficiaries are selected from organised youth groups and receive training on housing, feeding, breeding, disease control and farm management before receiving the animals.

The objective is not merely to distribute livestock but to establish viable commercial enterprises capable of generating wealth.

Kenya's pork industry continues to expand as demand for pork products rises in urban centres, hotels and processing industries.

Industry statistics indicate that Kenya has one of the largest pig populations in East Africa, with commercial and smallholder farmers supplying a growing market for fresh pork and processed products.

The relatively short production cycle makes pig farming attractive to young entrepreneurs seeking faster returns than many other livestock enterprises.

Governor Kimani Wamatangi says the livestock programme was deliberately designed to address youth unemployment through productive assets rather than short-term financial support.

Over 200, 000 women assisted to venture into poultry farming through free kienyeji chicks

The county government of Kiambu has so far distributed more than 700,000 improved Kienyeji chicks to over 200, 000 women in all the 60 wards under an economic empowerment programme designed to transform traditional backyard poultry into commercial enterprises.

The initiative targets women because they have historically been the custodians of household poultry, making them well placed to convert the birds into sustainable family businesses.

County agricultural officers say every beneficiary receives training on housing, feeding, vaccination, disease control and business management to improve survival rates and maximise returns.

The one-month old chicks are sourced from Kenya Agricultural and Livestock Research Organization (KALRO) which is a premier national government institution in Kenya to ensure they are of good quality.

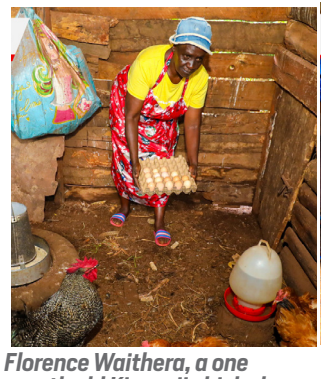

Unlike ordinary indigenous chickens that may lay between 40 and 80 eggs annually under traditional management, improved Kienyeji breeds can produce between 180 and 250 eggs every year with proper feeding and husbandry.

Boresha Barabara is a countywide road improvement programme aimed at improving connectivity, supporting businesses and making transport easier for residents.

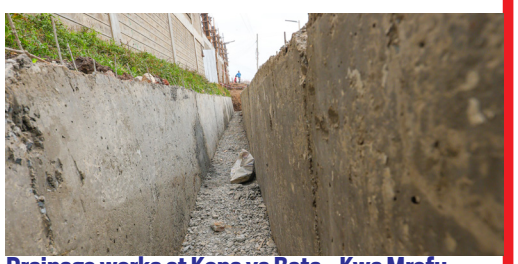

More than 1,500 kilometres of roads have been rehabilitated through grading and gravelling across the county.

The programme is using County road maintenance units (including graders, compactor rollers, excavators, water bowsers, shovels, and backhoes) distributed across all 12 sub-counties, covering the 60 wards, and utilises local quarries for materials. This has drastically reduced construction costs and improved efficiency.

"After delivering on ECDE centres, health, solar streetlights and other major projects, the focus in now on roads," Kiambu Governor Kimani Wamatangi says.

Drainage systems have been improved to reduce flooding and protect roads from damage.

Kiambu shifts from electricity to solar to cut power bills, installs 12,000 solar streetlights

Angaza Kiambu is a solar energy programme aimed at expanding access to reliable lighting while reducing public energy costs.

12,000 solar streetlights have been installed across all 60 wards to improve security and extend business hours.

An additional 12,000 solar streetlights are planned for installation by December this year.

The benefits are: lower installation costs, no monthly electricity bills, lighting even in rural areas not connected to the national grid, continuous operation during power outages, zero maintenance costs and a 10-year guarantee.

Public facilities have been solarised to reduce electricity costs and improve reliability.

Markets have been connected to solar power to support traders and improve operations.

Hospitals have been solarised to strengthen reliable power supply in health facilities.

'Kazi na Boda' programme changes fortunes for the boda boda riders in Kiambu

Kazi na Bodaboda is an empowerment programme targeting boda boda riders across Kiambu County to strengthen their businesses, improve financial stability and promote organised operations.

The programme focuses on transforming boda boda groups into Savings and Credit Cooperative Organisations (SACCOs) to enable riders to save collectively, access affordable financing and establish additional income-generating ventures.

The initiative has been rolled out across all 60 wards of Kiambu County to ensure riders benefit from structured support.

Organised boda boda SACCOs receive financial support to strengthen their operations, with each SACCO set to benefit from up to Sh2 million to boost savings, expand lending capacity and support economic activities.

Bodaboda sheds have been established across all 60 wards to provide riders with secure and organised operating spaces.

150,000 new water connections as 1,500km of pipeline network laid

MAJI NYUMBANI

Theta water project which will supply water residents of Ndarasha and judah areas in Theta Ward, Juja Constituency

Maji Nyumbani is a water access programme aimed at expanding reliable and affordable water supply to households, institutions and communities.

More than 100,000 new household water connections have been installed across the county.

Water coverage has increased to 85 percent, with a target of achieving universal access.

400 kilometres of Last Mile water connectivity have been completed to extend supply closer to households.

1,000 kilometres of water pipelines have been constructed by water companies to improve distribution networks.

Thirty-two boreholes have been drilled to increase access to clean water.

Twelve boreholes have been solarised to reduce operational costs and ensure reliable water supply.

Water storage tanks have been installed for communities and ECDE centres to improve water availability.

Sewer connectivity has been expanded in urban areas to improve sanitation.

The dream of Thika Smart City alive as people, Senate committee endorse it

Governor Kimani Wamatangi hands over an Ad-hoc report and charter to the County Assembly for approval

The dream to make Thika an Industrial Smart City, as envisioned by Governor Dr. Kimani Wamatangi, is nearing fruition. What began as a bold vision to reposition the town as a modern industrial and commercial powerhouse has now passed some of its most critical milestones, with the people and the Senate firmly behind it.

The public overwhelmingly endorsed the elevation of Thika to city status during public participation, affirming that the transformation reflects the aspirations of residents and the business community. The proposal, developed through an Ad Hoc and Technical Committee and subsequently approved by the County Assembly, then went before the Senate for scrutiny. The Senate committee undertaking the assessment gave the proposal a clean bill of health, paving the way for the Senate to approve the conferment of city status and transmit its resolution to the President.

The elevation will give fresh impetus to Thika's industrial base, attract new investment, create jobs and accelerate infrastructure development. It is expected to strengthen roads, drainage, water, sewerage and other urban services while opening new opportunities for manufacturing, trade, technology and a 24-hour economy. With its strategic location, established industries and growing population, Thika is poised to emerge as a major economic engine for Kiambu, the Mount Kenya region and Kenya.

Upgraded Ruiru Vocational Training Centre in Biashara Ward, Ruiru Sub-County

Governor Kimani Wamatangi's administration has transformed Vocational Training Centres (VTCs) from neglected institutions with dilapidated infrastructure and declining enrolment into vibrant centres of technical skills development that are now attracting unprecedented numbers of trainees.

Many VTCs that previously had only a handful of students, with some recording almost no enrolment, are today operating at or beyond capacity due to improved facilities, better training standards and renewed public confidence in vocational education.

New administration workshops, classrooms and offices 19 several VTCs have been renovated and equipped to create a conducive environment for competency-based training for youth who fail to join high school and universities.

Cabro block-making machines have been commissioned at Muguga, Ruiru, Kamirithu and Juja Farm Vocational Training Centres, with more set to be installed in at least one VTC in a sub-county to support training in construction skills while generating income for the institutions.

The administration recruited new instructors, addressing longstanding staffing shortages and significantly improving the quality of training across the county's VTCs.

Capacity-building programmes for VTC Principals and Boards of Governors have strengthened leadership, governance and management of vocational institutions.

A partnership with the Rahimutullah Trust led to the construction and equipping of a modern Electrical and Solar Technology Workshop at Muguga Vocational Training Centre, preparing trainees for opportunities in the growing renewable energy sector.

The county facilitated the certification of 8,431 artisans through the National Industrial Training Authority (NITA) and the Kenya National Examinations Council (KNEC), giving graduates nationally recognised qualifications that enhance their employability.

Newly established and equipped Limuru Fire and Rescue Centre in Limuru Municipality

The decision to invest in specialised emergency response training has transforming Kiambu County into a national benchmark in disaster preparedness and rescue operations.

At the centre of this success is the Kiambu Fire and Rescue Training Centre, established through a partnership with the Polish Centre for International Aid. The facility has trained hundreds of firefighters and emergency personnel from across the country in firefighting, accident rescue, drowning recovery, collapsed buildings, landslides and floods.

It has also become a specialised hub for Urban Search and Rescue, with Kiambu personnel among those being trained to handle complex building collapse incidents.

The investment in skills has been matched with modern equipment and strategically positioned fire stations in Kiambu, Githunguri, Kikuyu, Limuru and Thika. They are well equipped with modern fire engines, rescue equipment, water pumps and specialised machinery for clearing blocked drainage and responding to floods and other emergencies.

The impact extends beyond Kiambu. Its professional divers and rescue teams have been called upon to assist in emergencies in Nairobi, Murang'a, Kajiado, Kirinyaga, Embu, Nakuru and Nyeri, including water recoveries and other difficult rescue operations. During the 2024 floods, the county also deployed rapid response teams to support more than 100,000 residents affected by flooding.

Kiambu hits a record Ksh 6.5 billion in OSR without increasing any charges

Kiambu Governor Kimani Wamatangi (right) officially unveils Kiambu County's Own Source Revenue Collection for the 2025_2026 Financial Year

Since devolution, counties have remained heavily dependent on Exchequer disbursements for operations and development.

The resources, considering the large workforce inherited from defunct local autho rities and those seconded by the national government during the transition, are barely enough to fund meaningful development.

Recognizing this challenge from his decade as senator, Kiambu Governor Kimani Wamatangi introduced a new Enterprise Resource Planning system that automated every county service, including revenue collection.

This county-owned system increased Own Source Revenue Collection by 124 percent from 2022 without raising existing fees or charges.

"We haven't raised a penny in the fees and charges we have found. In fact we have actually reduced some of the fees and charges. "But the increase is because we have sealed all the leakages that were facilitating pilferage of the collection," Mr Wamatangi said,

According to the Office of the Controller of Budget and County Treasury, revenue increased from Sh2.9 billion to Sh3.6 billion in 2023, then to Sh4.6 billion in 2024, and Sh5.45 billion in 2025.

In the 2025-2026 financial year, the county collected Sh6.5 billion in OSR, the highest amount since devolution began in 2013.

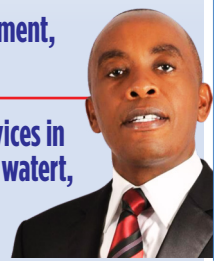

"The increase in OSR was attributed to the implementation of Huduma Mashinani initiatives; bringing government services closer to the people, upgrading medical services by equipping and modernising hospitals, and enhancing the revenue module in the ERP system, among others," reads the CoB report in part.

County Executive Committee Member for Finance and Economic Planning Nancy Kirumba noted that the OSR boost has pushed development funding past Sh8 billion, powering a range of transformative projects and programmes.

Kiambu builds youth opportunities through sports, skills development

For Kiambu County, investment in young people has gone beyond traditional youth programmes to create practical pathways to employment, entrepreneurship and talent development.

Through the Department of Youth Affairs, Sports and Communication, the County Government has combined sports, skills training and partnerships with private and public sector institutions to equip thousands of young people with opportunities to build sustainable livelihoods.

The flagship Wamatangi Champions Cup has provided a county-wide platform for grassroots talent, attracting 710 teams from all 60 wards. The tournament was designed not only to identify and nurture football talent but also to create opportunities in the wider sports industry, including refereeing and coaching.

The County trained 180 football referees, giving them professional skills and opportunities to earn from officiating, while 120 coaches were certified with CAF D Licences, enabling them to coach in recognised competitive football.

More than 800 teams have also received sports equipment and uniforms, helping reduce the cost of participation for young people at the grassroots.

The County has further strengthened grassroots football through a Ksh2.7 million sponsorship released in 2026 to support more than 200 teams affiliated to the Football Kenya Federation Kiambu Branch.

Alongside sports, the County has invested heavily in skills that respond to the changing job market. At least 1,200 young people completed practical courses in computer skills, plumbing, catering and other areas through a partnership with the International Youth Fellowship.

Another 126 young filmmakers were trained and certified through a six-day Film Capacity Building Workshop conducted in partnership with the Kenya Film Commission.

Digital skills have also become a major area of intervention. The County trained 1,200 young people in digital and entrepreneurship skills in partnership with Meta, while an additional programme equipped 18 youth groups with coding and mobile application development skills.

The County has complemented these programmes with direct engagement between young people, employers and training institutions. Its Youth Employability Summit brings together job seekers, graduates, entrepreneurs, employers and development partners to provide career guidance, mentorship, networking and access to employment and enterprise opportunities

To promote sports and talents among the youth, the county government of Kiambu has been constructing stadia across the sub-counties.

Among the stadiums under construction is Thika, a project in collaboration with the national government. The national government is working on the football pitch, athletic tracks, and terraces. The county has built a swimming pool, a basketball pitch, and a perimeter wall, with over 700 modern stalls to be allocated free of charge to existing traders.

Other stadia include Kanjeru in Kabete, which is under construction; Thigio in Ndeiya; Githunguri; Kirangari; Gachie; Ruiru; Cianda; and Gikabura. These are being fitted with astroturf carpet.

Further, the county has been sponsoring various sporting activities by supporting sportsmen and women to participate in tournaments and providing training.

Governor Kimani Wamatangi's development record in Kiambu County has earned recognition from national, regional and international organisations, with his administration receiving a string of awards for service delivery and transformative governance.

In 2025, Wamatangi was named Best Performing Governor at the Bobea Leadership Awards, recognising his development record and impact across Kiambu.

The same year, he received the People's Choice Governors' Excellence Award in Paris, France, at an event organised by the Europe Anglo Africa International Business Council and Africa International Chambers SouqNexus. The award recognised his work in agriculture, education and community development.

His administration also earned the 2025 County and Town Excellence Award from the Town and County Planners Association of Kenya in the Land and Building Development category, citing efforts to promote sustainable and controlled urban development.

In May 2026, Wamatangi received the Distinguished Public Service and Governance Award from IFP Global Advocates of Peace Kenya for his contribution to transformative governance, community empowerment and sustainable development.

A month later, the International Association of World Peace Advocates conferred on him the International Eminent Peace Ambassador honour, citing his development achievements and leadership in Kiambu.

Kiambu County has also received recognition from the Kenya Vision 2030 Secretariat for its performance in automation, e government and employment creation.

The culture change that has reshaped Kiambu

Governor Kimani Wamatangi addresses the management team at the famous 'Naivasha' Tent at the County Headquarter

Governor Kimani Wamatangi arrives at his office at 5:00 am

At 5.00am, when much of government is still asleep, Governor Kimani Wamatangi is already on the road heading to his office in Kiambu town.

By 6.30am, his senior officials are expected in the boardroom, where departments come with work plans, timelines and progress reports. Projects discussed in earlier meetings are revisited, with officers required to account for what has been done, what remains outstanding and when pending assignments will be completed.

It is an unusual routine in Kenya's devolved governments. More importantly, it has become a defining feature of how Wamatangi wants the Kiambu County Government to work.

When he took office in 2022, Wamatangi said Kiambu had lost years of devolution through poor management, wastage and weak accountability. He set out to change not only how government resources are managed, but also the culture and attitude within the public service.

The early morning meetings have become the administration's accountability engine. They compel departments to work from common plans, expose delays early and ensure senior officials remain focused on results. The governor personally takes notes and follows up on action points.

To institutionalise this approach, his administration established a Service Delivery Unit, tasked with tracking the implementation of government programmes, monitoring performance and ensuring that commitments made to residents translate into measurable results. The unit has reinforced a performance driven culture across departments.

The administration has also adopted "Delivering Excellence" as the county motto, turning service delivery into a central measure of government performance.

County workshops that once took officials to hotels in Mombasa, Naivasha and other destinations were moved to a tent at the county headquarters, nicknamed "Naivasha". Benchmarking trips were restricted, routine hospitality services cut and foreign benchmarking trips largely avoided, with technology seen as a cheaper way of accessing information.
